Mendels Demon:

Hellenism in the East Amélie Kuhrt, Susan M. Sherwin-White, 1987 Contest for Control Lars Magnusson, 1994-08
This study of a specific industry's survival and growth in three countries is a useful resource for research on industrial development in 19th century Europe Presenting the history of three major cutlery districts in Western Europe during the 19th century Sheffield in England Bergische land Solingen and Remscheid in Germany and Eskilstuna in Sweden the author focuses on each region's industrial development in relation to its socio cultural context This work challenges the flexible specialisation thesis often used to explain the seeming persistence of small scale and decentralised production within the cutlery industry since the 19th century and argues that growing businesses had to develop competitive strategies for control over important resources

The Structure of Biological Theories Paul Thompson, 1989-01-01 The central thesis of this book is that the semantic conception is a logical methodologically and heuristically richer and more accurate account of scientific theorizing and in particular of theorizing in evolutionary biology than the more widely adhered to syntactic conception In this book the author outlines both the conceptions indicating the significant problems with the syntactic conception explains and criticizes two influential syntactic conception accounts of the structure of evolutionary theorizing Thompson also argues that the semantic conception provides a richer and more accurate understanding than the syntactic conception of sociobiological explanation of the testability of sociobiology and of the role of culture and cognition in evolutionary explanations of human behavior

Prayers of Jewish Women Markus H. McDowell, 2006 Markus McDowell examines how the literature of the Second Temple period portrays women at prayer through an examination of the literary context and character of those prayers The goal of this work is a greater understanding of how women were portrayed in literary sources and an offering of some fresh insights for the study of women's religious and social roles in the ancient world The texts are analyzed and categorized within five areas social location content form occasion and gender perspective The prayers are also compared and contrasted with men's prayers in the same sources The analysis includes locating as much as possible the historical literary and cultic context of each document in which these prayers appear By examining all prayers in these texts uttered by women not just prayers of named or prominent women and then comparing them with all the prayers of men in those same texts certain patterns appear This study adds to our knowledge of women and religion in Second Temple Judaism by primarily exploring patterns that appear among the prayers in the literature of the Second Temple period While there are fewer prayers by women than men in this literature the prayers of women are not portrayed as significantly different from those of men in terms of social location content form or occasion At the same time the prayers of women exhibit other patterns of language and in a minor way form and occasion that differ from the prayers of men
