Presidential Plot:

The Development of the American Presidency Richard J. Ellis, 2026-04-15 The Development of the American Presidency provides students with a full examination of the historical development of the American presidency Organized by the topics and concepts relevant to political science this textbook keeps the constitutional origins and political development of the presidency as its central focus Through comprehensive and in depth coverage Richard J Ellis looks at how the presidency has evolved in relation to the public to Congress to the executive branch and to the law showing how different aspects of the presidency have followed distinct trajectories of change Each chapter promotes active learning for students beginning with an illustrative puzzle that brings to life a central concept A wealth of photos figures and tables allow for the visual presentation of concepts In this new edition the author incorporates new research into each chapter takes the full measure of the Biden presidency grapples with what the second Trump presidency means for the institution and highlights how the functioning of the constitutional system of checks and balances depends on assumptions of presidential self restraint Analyzing how history has shaped the modern institution this book helps undergraduate political science students gain a rich nuanced understanding of the American presidency

Plotting to Kill the President Mel Ayton, 2017-02 Since the birth of our nation and the election of the first president groups of organized plotters or individuals have been determined to assassinate the chief executive From the Founding Fathers to the Great Depression three presidents have been assassinated Abraham Lincoln James Garfield and William McKinley However unknown to the general public almost all presidents have been threatened put in danger or survived near lethal approaches during their terms Plotting to Kill the President reveals the numerous previously untold incidents when assassins plotters and individuals have threatened the lives of American presidents from George Washington to Herbert Hoover Mel Ayton has uncovered these episodes including an attempt to assassinate President Hayes during his inauguration ceremony an attempt to shoot Benjamin Harrison on the streets of Washington an assassination attempt on President Roosevelt at the White House and many other incidents that have never been reported or have been covered up Ayton also recounts the stories of Secret Service agents and bodyguards from each administration who put their lives in danger to protect the commander in chief Plotting to Kill the President demonstrates the unsettling truth that even while the nation sleeps those who would kill the president are often hard at work devising new schemes

The Presidential Plot P. Andrew Costello, 2010-10 We are all suckers for a good story and never more so than when it comes to a Presidential Election Every commentator is using narrative to describe the tactics of each campaign but how much do we really understand what Narrative means except that the Candidates are trying to sell us their story in return for our vote Founding Director of the Center for Narrative Studies www.storywise.com P Andrew Costello unpacks the idea of Narrative by taking us inside how stories work and how they are used to elect an American President He argues that there is a plot to elect a President that is more than just a story it is a conspiracy that campaigns don t want us to know about and a map we can read to know where their stories are headed Stories are manufactured like products and this insightful STORYWISE book argues that it s time for some consumer protection from stories that don t work or that are poorly constructed or might even be dangerous to the health of our democrac Gendered farm work, off-farm employment, and decision-making power: Quantitative evidence from Tajikistan Lambrecht, Isabel, Mahrt, Kristi, 2022-12-30 Globally nearly half of all workers in rural areas work in agriculture International Labour Organization 2020 Women are heavily involved in agricultural production but often get assigned different roles and responsibilities compared to men Doss 2018 In many contexts women have less decision making power than men regarding their households agricultural production or on how to spend agricultural income FAO 2011 Yet recent evidence suggests that a generalized assumption that women have no or little decision making power in agriculture is misplaced and that there are also settings where joint decision making between men and women is common Akter et al 2017 Maligalig et al 2019 It therefore remains imperative to add new evidence on women s and men s roles and decision making in agriculture particularly from contexts that have not been extensively studied Agricultural production in Tajikistan: Evidence from twelve districts in Khatlon Province, 2015 - 2023 Lambrecht, Isabel, Akramov, Kamiljon T., Aliev, Jovidon, Khakimov, Parviz, 2023-10-02 This report presents findings related to changes in household agricultural production between 2015 and 2023 in the twelve districts of Khatlon Province that constitute USAID s Zone of Influence ZOI The analysis relies on household survey data from 2000 households interviewed in February March 2023 and similar household survey data from 2000 households interviewed in February March 2015
