Schools and Workplaces United States. General Accounting Office, 1995 Schools and Workplaces DIANE Publishing Company, 1996-05 This report addresses the public s concern on the quality of education provided by elementary and secondary schools and on the productivity and performance of workers and their employers This report examines schools and workplaces especially as to how they relate in the following areas work environment human resources and management processes The majority of this report is a detailed annotated bibliography of nearly 100 books reports and articles each containing complete citation practice source of information and findings and conclusions Resources in Education , 1995

New Schools for a New Century Diane Ravitch, Joseph P. Viteritti, 1997-01-01 As we cross the threshold of a new century which approaches are likely to improve public education In this book distinguished scholars discuss recent innovations charter schools contracting arrangements and choice designed to liberate educators from burdensome bureaucratic controls and improve the level of opportunity for all children Focusing on the problems in cities where far too many children have been denied access to quality institutions the authors examine the lessons to be learned from Catholic schools site based management private entrepreneurs and specific developments in three cities New York Milwaukee and Chicago The authors though realistic about the political and institutional obstacles that stand in the way of meaningful change foresee the demise of the one size fits all approach to schooling They envision a system of schools that is dynamic diverse performance based and accountable one that is supportive of professionals responsive to creativity intolerant of failure and committed to high educational standards for all children Contributors Louann Bierlein Anthony Bryk John Chubb Chester Finn Paul Hill Valerie Lee Paul Peterson Diane Ravitch Joseph P Viteritti Priscilla Wohlstetter Financing Schools for High Performance Allan Odden, Carolyn Busch, 1998-04-03 This essential resource provides a roadmap for redirecting school funds in ways that will dramatically improve student performance Lead author Allan Odden³ 4one of the nation s foremost scholars in school finance³ 4offers a vision of finance reform that will give local schools more control over their budgets and ultimately boost student performance Allan Odden and Carolyn Busch look at the inefficiencies in current education spending examine varied approaches to school based financing and offer recommendations for restructuring financing systems to meet ambitious reform goals In addition they propose ways to make funding more equitable across districts outline the various elements that make school based management work and describe the key roles and responsibilities for the district even in a decentralized system Financing Schools for High Performance is filled with examples of creative finance structures formulas and actual school budgets that support student learning and rigorous instructional programs It will prove to be an indispensable aid for state district and school level administrators

Controlling Public Education Kathryn A. McDermott,1999 Most Americans believe that local school districts are the only means by which citizens may exercise control over public education Kathryn McDermott argues to the contrary that existing local institutions are no longer sufficient for achieving either equity or democratic governance Not only is local control inequitable it also fails to live up to its reputation for guaranteeing public participation and citizen influence Drawing upon democratic theory and the results of field research in New Haven Connecticut and three suburbs McDermott contends that our educational system can be made more democratic by centralizing control over funding while decentralizing most authority over schools to the level of schools themselves while enacting public school choice controlled for racial balance To many people in Connecticut and elsewhere the tension between equal opportunity for all students and local control of public education seems impossible to resolve In 1996 the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled in Sheff v O Neill that local control produces unconstitutional segregation of public schools Nearly all of the state s 169 towns operate their own public schools and like the towns they serve the schools are generally homogeneous with respect to race and socioeconomic class In the Sheff ruling the court declared that making school districts coterminous with town lines is the single most important factor contributing to the present concentration of racial and ethnic minorities in the Hartford public school system At the same time the court also acknowledged that the town based school system presently furthers the legitimate nonracial interests of permitting considerable local control and accountability in educational matters In Connecticut and elsewhere it has often seemed necessary to choose between local control and equity in public education and local control has almost always won McDermott argues that rather than seeing local control and equity as conflicting goals policymakers should regard them as equally important components of democracy in public education In her view a truly democratic system of education should both encourage citizen participation in school governance and contribute to the formation and maintenance of a social order in which equality of opportunity prevails over hierarchies of privilege Centralizing distribution of resources and using controlled choice to end racial isolation would provide greater equality of opportunity while decentralizing management of schools would expand citizen participation McDermott s conclusions break new ground in our understanding of local school governance itself and call into question the conventional wisdom about local participation These findings should interest those who study school governance and reform especially in an urban setting as well as policy makers administrators teachers students and citizens eager to improve their schools

School-Based Financing Margaret E. Goertz,Allan Odden,1999-08-27 This book addresses the critical issues and challenges facing state and district policymakers as they work to develop school based funding policies and related resource data systems The text is divided into three sections The first section provides a conceptual overview of the different issues involved in designing implementing and evaluating school based funding policies Its three chapters discuss a framework for thinking about how financial decision making might be defined outline the complexities in delegating more fiscal authority to school sites and detail how efficiency should be measured in K 12 education The three chapters in section 2 describe school based financing systems in English speaking democracies around the world This section outlines issues that arose in the early years of the implementation of school finance reform the experiences of Victoria Australia with school based financing and how one school system managed the delegation of significant management and budgetary authority The book concludes with a look at how schools school districts and states in the United States allocate and use financial resources School based funding formulas in five large districts in North America the emergence of performance based budgeting and how reforming schools actually use educational dollars are discussed in this section Includes an index RJM School-based Management Priscilla Wohlstetter,1994 Rediscovering the Democratic Purposes of Education Lorraine McDonnell,P. Michael Timpane,Roger W. Benjamin,2000 Why do America s public schools seem unable to meet today s social challenges As competing interest groups vie over issues like funding and curricula we seem to have lost sight of the democratic purposes originally intended for public education Public schools were envisioned by the Founders as democratically run institutions for instilling civic values but today s education system seems more concerned with producing good employees than good citizens Meanwhile our country s diversity has eroded consensus about citizenship and the professionalization of educators has diminished public involvement in schools This volume seeks to demonstrate that the democratic purposes of education are not outmoded ideas but can continue to be driving forces in public education Nine original articles by some of today s leading education theorists cut a broad swath across the political spectrum to examine how those democratic purposes might be redefined and revived It both establishes the intellectual foundation for revitalizing American schools and offers concrete ideas for how the educational process can be made more democratic The authors make a case for better empirical research about the politics of education in order to both reconnect schools to their communities and help educators instill citizenship An initial series of articles reexamines the original premise of American education as articulated by important thinkers like Jefferson and Dewey A second group identifies flaws in how schools are currently governed and offers models for change A final section analyzes the value conflicts posed by the twin strands of democratic socialization and governance and their implications for education policy Spanning philosophy history sociology and political science this book brings together the best current thinking about the specifics of education policy vouchers charter schools national testing and about the role of deliberation in a democracy It offers a cogent alternative to the exchange paradigm and shows how much more needs to be understood about an issue so vital to America s future Education Policy James D. Marshall,Michael A. Peters,1999 Presents 38 specially commissioned or previously published 1988-98 studies on recent changes in education policy throughout the world over the last quarter of the 20th century. Among the changes they explore are the move from localized and national policies toward encompassing international policies, the integration of schools into the world of work as demands for efficiency and performance have supplanted more traditional liberal goals of education to promote and provide the ideals of an educated elite and empowered autonomous individuals, the overt incorporation of market-led economic theories into education policy and associated management styles, and the transformation of education from a traditional welfare right to a privatized commodity. Their general themes are the definition, analysis, criticism, and research of education policy, markets, and economic development, education policy and the state, race, development, and culture, and social justice, literacy, and new technologies. There is no subject index.

The Inclusion of High Performance Features in Shared Decision Making Structures

Paul A. Brost, 1998 Rewards and Reform Susan H. Fuhrman, Jennifer A. O'Day, 1996-05-06 Rewards and Reform offers a comprehensive view of student, teacher, managerial, and organizational incentives and shows how they are linked to school reform goals. Noted experts in education policy, practice, and research, as well as respected thinkers and practitioners from the public and private sectors, consider a variety of incentive approaches. Drawing from such diverse sources as studies of performance incentives, reforms in Vermont, school structuring in New York City, private sector research on management, and current theories of motivation and organizational development, the book explains the underlying issues surrounding incentives and reform and provides a framework for future research and policy. The book shows, for example, how workplace redesigns could answer teachers' needs for autonomy and participation and so bolster the professional nature of teaching. It also examines alternative ways of thinking about teacher compensation.

Decentralization of Education in Thailand

Thithimadee Arphattananon, 2005 Studies of Education Reform Priscilla Wohlstetter, Susan Albers, Mohrman, 1996 This document presents findings of the Assessment of School Based Management Study, which identified the conditions in schools that promote high performance through school based management (SBM). The study's conceptual framework was based on Edward E. Lawler's 1986 model. The high involvement framework posits that four resources must spread throughout the organization: power to make or influence decisions, information upon which good decisions can be made, knowledge and skills to perform effectively, including good decision making and problem solving skills, and rewards for performance. This volume contains four sections. Section 1 includes an executive summary for the study; section 2 presents a summary review of the SBM literature; section 3 presents an overview of study aims and study questions; and section 4 contains a series of articles that draw on cross-site analyses from the two phases of the study. The study found that SBM requires a redesign of the whole school organization rather than a change in school governance. SBM fails when it is adopted as an end in itself; principals work from their own agenda; decision making power is centered in a single council; and business continues as usual. Strategies for successful implementation of SBM include: 1. establish multiple teacher-led decision making teams; 2. focus on continuous improvement with school wide training in functional and process skills including training in curricular and instructional areas 3 create a well developed system for sharing school related information among a broad range of constituents 4 develop ways to more effectively reward staff behaviors oriented toward achieving school objectives 5 select principals who can facilitate and manage change and 6 use district state and or national guidelines to focus reform efforts and to target changes in curriculum and instruction Data were obtained from a review of the literature and from over 500 interviews conducted in 44 schools in 13 school districts Three tables are included An annotated bibliography is included Contains 20 references LMI
