Future-Proofing Fuel Cells Martin David, Stephen M. Lyth, Robert Lindner, George F. Harrington, 2021-07-11 As the world accelerates towards a renewable energy transition the demand for critical raw materials CRMs for energy generation conversion and storage technologies is seeing a drastic increase Such materials are not only subject to limited supply and extreme price volatility but can also represent serious burdens to the environment to human health and also to socio political systems Taking an interdisciplinary perspective this book provides a novel perspective on the discussion about material dependencies of energy technologies It examines CRMs use in fuel cells an emerging energy conversion technology and discusses governance strategies for early stage fuel cell development to predict and avoid potential issues This will be an invaluable resource for researchers in energy studies engineering sociology and political science as well as those with a general interest in this field looking for an accessible overview

Building Research Capacity at Universities Maia Chankseliani, Igor Fedyukin, Isak Frumin, 2022-10-11 This edited volume represents a collective contribution to the current debates on developing university research capacity The chapters in this volume offer empirical case studies from post Soviet countries which share a common history common policies and practices of higher education These commonalities make the regional focus meaningful and analytically valid At the same time the case studies demonstrate divergence from the shared Soviet tradition and offer historical sociological and political analyses of how and in what ways universities in former Soviet countries internalised their research mission and developed the capacity to carry out this mission This volume is the first of its kind to examine national and institutional resources political will and individual agency to understand how these influenced universities motivation expertise and opportunities of undertaking research since the early 1990s and how universities changed their structures and practices under these influences The book will appeal to students and scholars in the fields of education sociology political science and economics

Science Evaluation and Its Management Václav Pačes, Ladislav Pivec, Albert H. Teich, 1999 Evaluation of scientific research particularly of research which is supported by government funds is a matter of growing concern in virtually every nation It is no longer adequate to expect that the value of investments in research will be judged in long term historical perspective Resources are scarce and policy makers are looking for ways to assure that these resources are used in the most effective way From the life or death evaluations of academic research institutes in the post communist countries to the Government Performance and Results Act GPRA in the United States research evaluation has become a topic of utmost importance in science policy Evaluation often has substantial consequences for researchers and research institutions including restructuring shifting of priorities budget reductions or enclosures Therefore it is essential that evaluation is done systematically and objectively with methodologies that can be understood and trusted by those concerned This book is based on a NATO Advanced Research Workshop co organized by the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic and the American Association for the Advancement of Science It describes a range of the most up to date methods of science evaluation and the experience with their implementation in many countries
