

Where We Come From

This display illustrates the diversity of the children in the classroom. A central world map is surrounded by lines that connect to approximately 40 small circular portraits of children. Each portrait shows a child's face, often with unique features or expressions. The portraits are arranged in a circular pattern around the map, with lines radiating from the map to each child's face. The entire display is set against a blue background with a green scalloped border. Several small text labels are scattered throughout, including "Hello", "Marabou", "Governa", and "Moj".
