World leaders meet in London to discuss the global economy.

July 20th in the City when representatives from the world's major nations, around the world will meet in London, England to discuss the world's economic state. Everything from tax, interest rates, international agreements, debt, currency issues and global trade will be the subject for discussion during the annual gathering of the world's top states.

Some nations are already working with the idea of tax cuts, but others are still trying to get their own economies in order. The meeting is expected to be a very important one, as it will be the first time since the end of the 1970s that all the major powers will be in the same room.

Climate change - Does recycling really make a difference or is history just repeating itself?

Recent studies carried out by scientists have revealed that recycling can make a difference to the environment, but it is not the only solution.

It is also important to consider the impact of the way we live. The amount of energy we use, the amount of waste we produce, and the way we transport goods are all factors that can make a difference.

THE INSIDE STORY

Have scientists made a major breakthrough in the cancer-coding search for a cure?
