A Scriptural Sculpture of Knowledges Serge Ntamack, 2013 This book is a scriptural sculpture of how the physical dimensions of the earth built and natural and antecedents of history structure knowledges and the physical containers human and non human that embody those knowledges The book deals with universalisms grounded on African experiences and perspectives A key theme is how in security relates to knowledge creation by drawing a parallel between the proliferation of violent conflict in Africa and the marginal position that the continent occupies in the modern formation of knowledge Also explored is the concept of creativity in relation to art and politics as experienced by the black African elite Bottlenecks to African creativity and the role of space and history in the production and reproduction of knowledge and ways of knowing are critically reviewed The author makes a case for the existence of irreducible forms of knowledge existing in distinct laboratories and traces how particular biological and environment features interact with human cognition to form what passes for knowledge He interrogates the variety of environment cognition in the light of an increasing homogenization of human cognition globally with a particular accent on climate change This is a bold and legitimate voice on an important conversation

Ricoeur, Rawls, and Capability Justice Molly Harkirat Mann, 2012-02-09 Contemporary capabilities based approaches to social justice inspired by the Aristotelian emphasis on human well being have tended to separate and even oppose identity based or recognitive justice from resource based or redistributive justice This book demonstrates that such a divorce risks further polarizing capable members of the political community from disabled or vulnerable members In order to prevent this danger of legitimizing the growing stratification between rich and poor or between capability and vulnerability in modern neo liberal societies Molly Harkirat Mann turns to the work of Paul Ricoeur. In so doing she develops the argument that our historical and institutionalized practices of sharing articulated by the lexicographical configuration of the Rawlsian principles of justice represent a method for public deliberation or civic Phronesis the ethical aim of which is the non exclusion of our most vulnerable citizens from public institutions of care. By developing his political philosophy in relation to class politics in modern liberal societies this book shows how Ricoeur's political thought is more closely aligned to that of John Rawls than has previously been acknowledged.

BOOK JACKET Recognition, Identity Construction, and Second-generation Hmong American Students in an Urban High School Sylvia E. Kwon, 2006.

China's Mongols at University Zhenzhou Zhao, 2010-04-09. Minority students in China often receive preferential treatment for access to universities. However very little is known about minority student experiences and perceptions on campus after they are accorded what's called meaningful access to university. The Mongols emerged as a distinct ethnic group in China starting in the 11th century and in the centuries that followed conquered a large part of the world. However in modern times this nomadic people's influence has declined and even their survival in China has been threatened This decline is evidenced by the fact that increasing numbers of Mongols have abandoned their native language and traditional customs especially those who live in cities How do Mongol university students who form the backbone of the Mongol intellectual community identify themselves in a modern Chinese context How do they react as university students to the way in which their culture is recognized and represented Do Mongol students suffer from injustice in the cultural dimension of campus life China's Mongols at University Contesting Cultural Recognition seeks to answer these questions Zhenzhou Zhao addresses these issues by comparing the university discourse on minority culture policy institutional structure and daily life and the Mongol student discourse concerning their experiences perceptions of recognition and dedication to self representation on campus Additionally Gao compares three universities in China Located in Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region Beijing and Hubei Province respectively each of these universities represents one of three types of higher education accessible to minority students in China universities located in ethnic areas standard universities and universities for nationalities China's Mongols at University explores and discusses an intrinsic connection between marketization and globalization and the disadvantages faced by minority groups This book argues that China must move from a policy of preferential treatment
