

3.3 Airports

China's international airports are located in large cities and provide high quality transportation. As in other international airports, make sure you have completed your arrival form, customs declaration form and have your passport and visa ready before you reach immigration. Chinese customs are usually very helpful and friendly, but do not become angry or aggressive with them as it will only cause you a lot of trouble. Do ask for assistance if you have any doubts, and check what items should be declared.
