Course Description: This course will focus on the areas of process management and supply chain management. Within Process Management (PM) we will investigate manufacturing relationships between process, technology, cycle time, and throughput. In Capacity Management (CM) we will examine the time use of resources, management efficiency, process capacity utilization, the total system level, and total amount of supply reduction for materialized using inventory model.

Course Objectives: This course is an introduction to Operations Management (OM), which focuses on the design and control of production systems which both produce and service selected organizations. Specifically, this course seeks to: (a) introduce students to the basic concepts of OM; (b) acquaint students with terminology in the area; and (c) prepare students to some degree studying their next introductory OM.

Textbook (optional): Managing Supply with Demand – An Introduction to Operations Management, 4th Edition, Christopher and Lovelock, McGraw-Hill Irwin 2018

Classroom: All new students will be enrolled in Target Center Annex from Monday.

Final or comprehensive test or assignment: The course portfolio is required and necessary.

Assignment/Exercises/Assignments: A supply chain course student college community involvement program will be discussed early in Introduction to PM 5532 or later.

Course Calendar: will be a necessary introduction to this course. A new portfolio is available at target copy and includes a number of cases that will be discussed. Case studies will cover various combinations of questions for the various material cases and assignments from participating in this class discussion for each case. The OM syllabus is the most important part of the portfolio and will be the first thing you should read upon enrollment.
