

New challenges for documentary: Second edition

copy link in description

The first edition of New challenges for documentary provided a major stimulus for teaching about documentary film and television and fresh encouragement for critical thinking about practice. This second edition brings together many new contributions both from academics and filmmakers, reflecting shifts both in documentary production itself, and in ways of discussing it. Once again, the emphasis has been on clear and provocative writing, sympathetic to the practical challenges of documentary film-making but making connections with a range of work in media and communications analysis. With its wide range of contributors and the international scope of its agenda, New challenges for documentary will be essential reading for

Engaging Killer Performances. Strategies for Affective Engagement in Genocide Documentaries John Nicolas Helferich, 2016-09-21 Seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject Communications Movies and Television grade 1 0 University of Mannheim MKW language English abstract The documentary genre has recently gone through challenging times as the 21st century and its culture are characterised as both postmodern and post documentary This means that an attitude towards knowledge has evolved that rejects modernity's belief in universal truth and its privileging of technological scientific modes of discovery such as documentary film As a result viewers treat grand narratives about political ideology in media with suspicion Consequently questions arise around how political documentaries are able to voice social critique and bring about change in this new context without getting accused of outright manipulation In order to answer these questions this work analyses Joshua Oppenheimer's The Act of Killing 2012 and The Look of Silence 2014 about the 1965 killings in Indonesia Oppenheimer employs an innovative approach as never before have mass murderers been recorded in the making of a film about their crimes T AoK nor has there ever been a film where a victim confronts the perpetrators while the perpetrators are still in power T LoS This work looks at the potential for feelings of closeness with the perpetrators and victims resulting from the complementary film documents The findings show that Oppenheimer avoids ideological claims by inviting viewers to immerse themselves in the lives of the protagonists Viewers shall draw individual conclusions that are stimulated by a heightened perceptual experience of the filmic world
