

The feathers on the neck are long and for what can look like feathers when the neck is not fully stretched

When the neck is fully stretched the feathers wrap around the back from each side

The feathers meet in the middle of the neck starting at the crown and meeting at the shoulders

The breast are very prominent on the front from any angle, the feathers catch the light on them

The crown feathers gather around the side to the back of the head

The base of the throat sits tight under the throat and not feathers

There are long stiff feathers like bristles under the throat

In young Ravens these are not as long or sharp as the adults

The feathers are split down the middle and spread out to the sides

The feathers overlap each other and are very pointed. They are short under the throat and then become long in the middle
