Abstract

Positionality has long been a preoccupation for qualitative researchers within and beyond geography. Reflexive assessments of positionality typically examine the ways in which a researcher's sociodemographic identifiers such as gender, age, ethnicity, dis/ability, sexuality, and/or the intersections between these affect research encounters, processes, and outcomes. Religion rarely features in such interrogations, and then usually only in relation to participants' ethnic or racial affiliations. Drawing on experiences conducting a study exploring the role of faith-based organisations in welfare provision for homeless people in the UK, this paper focuses on the related (but not synonymous) issue of metaphysical stance, that is, belief or non-belief in the existence of God(s). It argues that metaphysical stance should be regarded as a sui generis aspect of positionality, which fits into none of the identity categories typically considered but is deserving of separate analysis with respect to its ethical and practical implications. Further to this, it contends that extreme diplomacy and discretion are required when exploring issues as inherently value-laden as the moral frameworks underpinning welfare approaches. This is especially true when participants' views divide in part along theist/atheist lines, such that religious and policy "literacy" are valuable attributes for researchers negotiating these sensitive terrains in the field.

1 | INTRODUCTION

Like politics, faith is not generally considered a suitable subject for dinner-party conversation. That faith in the public realm is about both religion and politics make this highly charged territory. (Dinham & Lowndes, 2009, p. 1; emphasis in original) Faith is a deeply personal or "touchy" matter for many people, and sociopolitical sensitivities regarding religion are legion. These often come to the fore when faith community involvement in public service delivery is under discussion (Joachim et al., 2007). One might therefore expect that introducing such issues into research involving highly vulnerable people might complicate the research dynamic, and perhaps even risk aggravating raw nerves when people are in the

Metaphysical Values:

Reality and Value Arthur Campbell Garnett, 2019-03-06 Originally published in 1937 This book addresses the importance of the theory of values that rests on a general metaphysical understanding founded on a comprehensive view of all aspects of the world The author speaks against the absolutist theories with a realistic one encompassing a theory of space and time and considering value as an object of immediate intuition These great philosophical questions feed into discussions of the philosophy of religion and of science Garnett distinguishes between spiritual and other values on the ground that the spiritual values are not subjective to satiety while other values are He contends that our knowledge of mind is as direct and reliable as our knowledge of the physical world This is an important early book by an influential 20th Century thinker

Being and Value Frederick Ferre, Frederick Ferré, 1996-01-01 Being and Value begins with a discussion on metaphysics showing the vital relationship between human life and the philosophical placement of value and emphasizing the current transition from the old mechanical worldview to the postmodern alternative inspired by ecology Being and Value shows how intimately premodern philosophy bound value into the fabric of things and analyzes the expulsion of value from factual being during the modern period Special attention is given to beauty What is the relationship between the subjective and objective conditions of beauty Is the beauty of nature merely the product of human appreciation The answer is that beauty and value is a more potent ingredient in the structure of things than modern reductionism allows Metaphysics and Explanation W.

Metaphysics of the Will to Power Tsarina Doyle, 2018-02-15 Nietzsche's controversial will to power thesis is convincingly rehabilitated in this compelling book Tsarina Doyle presents a fresh interpretation of his account of nature and value which sees him defy the dominant conception of nature in the Enlightenment and overturn Hume's distinction between facts and values Doyle argues that Nietzsche challenges Hume indirectly through critical engagement with Kant's idealism and that in so doing and despite some wrong turns he establishes the possibility of objective value in response to nihilism and the causal efficacy of consciousness as a necessary condition of human autonomy Her book will be important for scholars of Nietzsche's metaphysics and of the history of philosophy and science more generally The Eternal Values Hugo Münsterberg, 1909
